The aim of this research is to identify the impact of perceived value of Jamu towards the millennial purchase decision in the case study of generation Z. The indicators use for perceived value are awareness, perception, and family environment. As for purchase decision, the indicator used are consumer behavior and purchase motivation. The data were collected from 125 who have previously consumed Jamu. Simple linear regressions and descriptive data analysis were used to examine the data collected. The findings indicate that perceived value of Jamu significantly impacts the millennial generation and with descriptive data analysis each indicator were examined. Among all indicators of perceived value, perceptions have the highest impact towards the millennial purchase decision.

Keywords: Perceived Value of Jamu, Awareness, Perception, Family Environment, Consumer Behavior, Purchase Decision, Purchase Motivation.

DEDICATION

I dedicated this work to myself and my family.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First and foremost, thank you God for listening to my prayer and in helping to overcome all challenges in life.

Most importantly, I would like to thank my family for the constant support through my tough times.

To Chef Rano, thank you for being my thesis advisor. Thank you for giving my continuous feedback and guidance over the past few months. Thank you for motivating me and supporting me throughout the process.

To my significant other, Jessica, thank you for all the advices, motivation, support, and helping me to get through tough times.

To my closest friends, thank you for being there in helping me with my struggles and being a great listener.

Last but not the least, to everyone who have not been mentioned, thank you for your kindness during the writing process.
