Reviewer A:

This article contributes well to the scientific fields covered in this journal. The article has been written according to the template. The strong aspect of this article can be seen in its novelty by including the issue of Covid-19. Perceptions of workers become a new basis for managing organizational performance. This gap is explained through quantitative research. It's just that the discussion is still limited to issues on the subject studied and has not seen the same issues in various regions/countries. This discussion is important to increase the generalization of the results. Please add those in the discussion section.

Recommendation: Revisions Required
